As a Partner and Subrogation professional in Butler's Tampa office, Aaron Jacobs enjoys the challenge of taking a complex matter, and boiling it down to the most critical terms to assist a client in achieving the most favorable recovery resolution possible. Recently, Aaron settled a complex pipe failure case in a high-rise office building with damages exceeding $7.8 million, and, in another instance, he resolved a water loss at a business that involved an aquarium leak with damages in excess of $6.1 million. Fire losses are also a crucial component to his practice and his credentials include handling a lawsuit from a fire that occurred during an office renovation with damages that measured more than $4.7 million.

Aaron has handled subrogation claims arising in numerous jurisdictions in the continental United States, as well as Puerto Rico, Bahamas, United States Virgin Islands (USVI), Dominican Republic, and St. Lucia. He also has experience handling claims against, and obtaining service on, international defendants. Aaron has also handled a number of Aviation related subrogation claims and achieved a full recovery of a property damage claim caused by a plane crash at the Key West International Airport.

Before becoming an attorney, Aaron was a state licensed professional boxing promoter, which provided him with a unique skill set that he utilizes daily in his subrogation practice, such as issue spotting and problem-solving in a time-sensitive manner. His hard-hitting and detail-oriented approach, in conjunction with the negotiation skills and business perspective he garnered from the boxing world, are some of the qualities that clients love most about working with Aaron.

Aaron has showcased his subrogation knowledge and acumen in a number of webinars he has presented over the years, which include presentations on aquarium failures and the management of forensic investigations. Aaron is involved in a number of professional organizations, and he has presented for the National Association of Subrogation Professionals and Claims Litigation Management. He has also authored several publications on a variety of subrogation topics.

When he is not in the office, Aaron believes that community is an essential part of the Service principal at Butler. He actively donates to Bay Area Legal, which provides free civil legal services to qualified and low-income residents and nonprofits throughout the Tampa Bay area. He also actively donates to the United Way Suncoast organization, which aims to break the cycle of generational poverty throughout the Suncoast region. However, the charity that remains closest to his heart is the Alan M. Jacobs Memorial Fund, which is dedicated to providing financial support to engineering students at the University of Florida.
